Task Two: Creation of a "Who I Am" artifact

Essential Question: How Do YOU Connect to Your Career Path?

Requirements:

1. This artifact (a.k.a. self-representation piece) should showcase all the things that are important to you.
2. The aspects you include should be showcased in a manner so that it is easy to decipher which of them are most important to you when taken into consideration while making choices about your pathway / career / future.
  - For example, George Daley's artifact may include a passion for rugby, but that is not as prominently displayed as his computer coding skills or his love for the outdoors, which he considers to be the most valuable part of who he is.

Format of the Artifact

The format is completely flexible, as long as it meets the criteria. For example, you could choose to create an art piece, a picture collage, a diagram, a comic strip, (something mostly visual) – almost anything is acceptable as long as the things you consider important about you are all included, and that the most important things to you are clearly emphasized. Highly recommended: use 11x17 paper (note, your artifacts will be folded when they are put in your file) – you may pick up some paper from the Career Centre if needed.

Note: The artifact should contain at least 15 items (or more). You should have at least one item (or descriptor) from each of the following categories:

- personality / personal qualities
- strengths
- values
- interests / passions
- hobbies
- personal skills
- favourite school courses
- family / culture
- anything else important to you

Note: Ask your friends, teachers and family for help brainstorming

Your artifact will be assessed on a 5-point scale based on the following criteria:

- ✓ The artifact includes 15 or more items, each different.
- ✓ It is clear that much time and effort went into the planning and design of the artifact; you took great pride in your work.
- ✓ The design and construction appear carefully planned: the artifact is attractive in terms of design, layout (no gaps or blank spaces) and neatness.
- ✓ The artifact shows creativity and many details.
- ✓ It is clear which items are most important to you.

Once you have completed your artifact, complete the following:

- a. Add a box to your myBlueprint Connections portfolio and upload a photo of your completed artifact. (+ Add Box, + Add Media)
- b. Choose two of the Core Competencies that you developed the most in your creation of your Self-Representation Artifact, and write and add a reflection to your portfolio discussing how your chosen competencies were developed throughout this task.
(+ Add Box, + Add Journal, Title: *Session #1 Core Competencies Reflection, type your reflection in the Description Box)

** To review the Core Competencies in detail, go to

Task Three: Submission and Assessment of your “Who I Am” Artifact

Requirements:

1. Type a reflection that explains your artifact in 300-500 words. Answer the following three questions:
  - a. For what reasons did you determine certain aspects about yourself were more or less important?
  - b. How did you depict the difference between what was really important to you and what was not that important?
  - c. What career examples can you think of that relate to items you consider “most important”? (You can use myBlueprint to help find possible career paths – do some research in the Explore Occupations Box – go to your Dashboard and scroll down.)
2. Complete the Artifact Submission Sheet (last page of this document), and hand in your artifact to the Career Centre for assessment by Thursday, November 15th
